Compiled from records, notes, letters and various other data collected by Gabriel Roberts Solomon during his lifetime, and edited by his wife, Jeannette Bucknam Solomon, at Troy, N.Y., November, 1958.

In the following pages we have endeavored to put in chronological form the basic facts which qualify any descendant of Lazarus Solomon and Elizabeth Bedgood for membership in the Daughters of the American Revolution, or Sons of the Revolution. There are a great many lateral branches which stem from the original pair, including such maternal branches as Malone, French, Stiles, Roberts, and many others about whose history we have some limited records. Because of the impossibility of including all of this data in this brief account without making large charts or family trees, we have arranged the material in its simplest form, down through the Solomon line, and have included only some side history of the Roberts line, from Gabriel Baldwin Roberts, father of our Lillian Roberts Solomon, (1858 - 1941).

The earliest Solomon of whom we know anything was the first Peter Solomon, who came to America from England, probably in the early eighteenth century, and is variously reported to have settled in New Jersey, Virginia, or North Carolina. We have found no records of his birth, death or whom he married, but he was the father of three sons, Peter, James and Lazarus. We have begun the family history with the Lazarus Solomon descendants, all of whom appear to be gentiles, and many gentile Solomons have been located in Georgia, Alabama and Texas, as well as those who settled in New Jersey in the early years.

Among Gabriel Roberts Solomon's data were a great number of old photographs and snapshots, also many newspaper clippings of Solomon family affairs, obituaries, births, weddings, etc. These we have put into two large scrapbooks for the benefit of any or all of you. Whatever of this material anyone may wish to borrow or look at, we will keep on file with the other data collected by us, so that it may be available whenever desired by anyone of the family.

Also included in this folio are some recollections and anecdotes provided by Gabriel Roberts Solomon, who in his late years lost his eyesight from overwork as Architect-Engineer for the Government on the building of Army Camps from 1940 to 1943. (Camp Blanding at Starke, Fla., Morrison Field (Airforce) at West Palm Beach, Florida; utilities at MacDill Field, Tampa, Fla., and Camp VanDorn at Centerville, Miss.) These sketches were dictated by him to myself or our daughters, Dana Solomon Munro and Gabrielle Solomon Ewing, and some to Grady E. Clay, Jr. during a visit from him to our home in Troy, N. Y. I have included them in this collection as some are humorous and of contemporary interest.

With greetings to all Solomons, I send you the inclosed account of your ancestors and contemporaries, inadequate as it is to cover such a large family. Someone might add to these pages a list of those who served in our military and naval forces in World Wars I and II, so that future generations might have that valuable data.

Most sincerely yours,

Jeannette Bucknam Solomon.

Three sons of the first Peter Solomon came from England to America. They were: John, born 1760.
Lazarus, born 1765.
Levi, born Nov. 10, 1767.

John served in the Revolution and came to Coffee County, Georgia, for a while.

Levi was a Presbyterian, married (first) Catherine Wilsey, and (second) Eliza R. Cook, and settled near Freehold, New Jersey.

Lazarus, second son of the original Peter Solomon, is our direct ancestor, and he and his wife, Elizabeth Bedgood Solomon, had fourteen children, as shown on the page copied from his bible. Listed in the first U. S. Census of 1889-90 as Lazarus Solomons. His Revolutionary record is published in the Colonial Records of North Carolina, Vol. 16, p. 1163, which show he enlisted April 18, 1781, and served the term of his enlistment, one year, under General Nathaniel Green, as an orderly, and was honorably discharged at the end of this time. He fought in the Battle of King's Mountain, under General Green who was in command of the 10th North Carolina Regiment, in which Lazarus served in Rhodes Company, and was detailed as the General's bodyguard. In the Battle of Cowpens, N.C., Lazarus grabbed a musket from a dead soldier and joined in the rout of the British. General Green became deeply attached to him and after the war visited him at his plantation near Fitzpatrick, Twiggs County, Ga. One day while they were at dinner a deer came out of the forest and stood in the edge of the clearing about the house. Lazarus got down his musket from over the fireplace and Gen. Green shot through the open window of the diningroom and killed the deer. He visited Lazarus for over two weeks and had a great time hunting and fishing. (Quoted from an old letter.)

The first U. S. Census (of 1790) contains the following list of Solomons in North Carolina:

Page	Name	District	County
68	Barnes Solomon	Halifax	Martin
60	Goodwin "	"	Franklin
55	Isham "	"	Edgecombe
61	John "	"	Halifax
57	William "	"	Franklin
60	William "	"	Franklin
60	James Solomons	"	Franklin
71	Lazarus Solomons	"	Nash

Lazarus is shown in this census in 1790 as the head of a household of eight, and without slaves. He was then twenty-five years old. His oldest child, Delilah, was born Sept. 12, 1789, a year before the census, so there must have been others besides his immediate family living with them at the time the census was taken. It is said that Lazarus drew land in Georgia in a lottery which the Government conducted to encourage settlement in Georgia, he being eligible as an ex-Revolutionary soldier. This has not been verified, but he moved from Nash County, N.C., to Georgia in 1801, at which time he had seven children.

Family tradition also says that his brother John came to Coffee County, Georgia, and settled there for a while, but did not remain permanently. There is no record of John Solomon's wife's name nor of his descendants.

Lazarus Solomon married Elizabeth Bedgood of Nash County, N.C. Four Bedgood families are listed in the 1790 census for North Carolina, but we know nothing more about Elizabeth than what is contained in the Lazarus Solomon family bible, with dates of her birth and death, and the date her leg was cut off. All of the children of Lazarus married gentiles, as did their children and grandchildren, and many became prominent in the Methodist and Baptist churches of Georgia, Alabama, and Texas, especially John Wesley Solomon who was a prominent Baptist preacher. Lazarus' son Peter (our grandfather) was a Presbyterian and left instructions at his death that he be given a Christian burial. The family was very prolific, and Lazarus' daughter Delilah who married John Land, had 19 children.

PETER SOLOMON (1806 - 1883)

Peter Solomon, the tenth child of Lazarus and Elizabeth Bedgood Solomon, was born at the family plantation near Marion, Georgia. He came to Macon in 1826, several years after the city's establishment. At that time the capital of Georgia was at Milledgeville. He was elected to the State Legislature when a young man just past his majority. He built the fine Colonial homestead in Vineville, about 1847, on ten acres which fronted on the main road (Vineville Ave.) as it does today, and ran back to the Central of Ga. Railroad tracks. The original frontage was about 800 feet. After Peter Solomon died the property was divided (in 1888) into three tracts and two parts were sold. The center tract contained the house and about 300 feet of frontage. The house was built at an estimated cost of $4,500 at that time. It was bought later by Judge Emory Speer for $8,500, a ridiculous price, and a still later owner was Mr. J. S. Birdsey who kept the property until very recent years. (do not have present owner's name.) Some years ago when the old home was for sale, it was offered to members of the Macon family for about $12,000, but no one at the time took up the offer, so that it passed out of the family ownership again.

Peter Solomon had an injury to his leg, resulting in an operation in 1826 and lifelong lameness. When the Civil War was declared he was disqualified for service by his age, 58, and bad leg. His two oldest sons, Charles Henry Solomon, who was 18 when war was declared, and Stephen Malone Solomon, were in service when the surrender took place, April 26, 1865. Stephen served in the Home Guards. Nathan Monroe Solomon, born 1850, also served in the war, having run away to join the Confederates when he was too young to be drafted. During Sherman's march through Georgia, General Stoneman raided and captured Macon and made the Peter Solomon home his headquarters. His cavalry men camped in the rear of the big house in what was then the pine woods and pasture, and destroyed some fruit trees. The family silver was buried and safely hidden, but much damage was done to the property. Although a claim was filed, no reimbursement was ever made by the U. S. Government.

The children of Peter Solomon and his first wife, Martha C. Fort, were:

1. Indiana Aurelia Solomon, born June 16, 1834.
Married Tapperly Holt, Mar. 17, 1853.
2. Martha Fort Solomon, born March 17, 1836, died Nov. 8, 1898.
Married Horace Heartwell, April 17, 1859.

The children of Peter Solomon and his second wife, Maria Louise Malone, were:

1. Malone Solomon, born Oct. 12, 1844, died July 16, 1846.
2. Charles Henry Solomon, born Aug. 25, 1846, died Aug. 30, 1895.
3. Mary Louise Solomon, born Dec. 20, 1847, died May 3, 1914.
Married (1) Levi H. Wing -- two children
" (2) Alonzo Ripley -- five children.
4. Nathan Monroe Solomon, born May 18, 1850, died March 15, 1890.
5. Stephen Malone Solomon, born July 21, 1852, died Jan. 15, 1923.
6. Peter Solomon, Jr. born Oct. 26, 1854, died May 17, 1907.
- *7. William Griffin Solomon, born Sept. 24, 1856, died June 29, 1927.
Married Sarah Lillian Roberts

LAZARUS

~~Peter~~ Solomon is buried at the Solomon Homestead in Twiggs County, Ga., about two miles west of Fitzpatrick. The grave bears a D. A. R. bronze tablet marker.

The following obituary of Peter Solomon appeared in the Macon Telegraph of November 2, 1883.

DEATH OF MR. PETER SOLOMON

At 6^o o'clock yesterday morning Mr. Peter Solomon expired. His death was not unexpected. He had been confined to his room from sickness for about 10 weeks. He had been long identified with this City and County and Central Georgia. He removed from Twiggs Co.: where he filled the position of Ordinary to Macon about 1833. In 1836 he was elected the first cashier of the Monroe R.R. & Banking Co. Co. He shortly afterwards settled in Vineville and was one of the factors of that beautiful sublet of Macon. In 1835 he became a member of Mulberry St. M.E. Church and was soon one of its stewards, which office he filled with fidelity until his death. He was also a trustee of the Academy of the Blind and the oldest surviving trustee of Wesleyan Female College. It was but a few months ago that, in honor of his long service as an efficient member of the Board of Trustees of the College, the office of Vice-President was created and tendered to him. He was also one of the early members of the Macon Lodge of Masons.

For many years prior to the War he was associated with Nathan Monroe in charge of the agency at this place of the Mechanics Bank of Augusta.

He was an industrious, energetic, intelligent and Christian gentleman, faithful to all the responsibilities of the various offices he filled and he enjoyed the esteem of his fellow citizens.

He reared a large family in our midst who are identified with this community. With them we deeply sympathise in the loss of their parent, whom we may regard as one of the patriarchs of our Country, he having several years ago passed the age of three score years and ten.

His funeral will take place at 11⁰⁰ today from the Mullaney St. M.E. Church.

The exercises of the Academy for the Blind and of Wesleyan Female College will be suspended this morning in order that the pupils may attend the funeral.

Seldom has a larger congregation of mourners, of youth and old age assembled. The pupils of the Academy for the Blind and Wesleyan Female College and many others were present. Representative men and women of all ages attended. The exercises were conducted by the Rev. Dr. Hinton, Bass & Key.---

Dr. Key read the burial chapter and discoursed upon the life and character of the deceased who died at the age of 77 years, 50 of which were spent in this community and 48 of them as a member of the M.E. Church.

During the long period, while engaged in various positions of trust and responsibility, no stain was ever insinuated against his character.

He lived so as to be prepared for death, and when the summons came he was ready for the narrow house -

Where pain, nor grief, nor anxious fear
Invades thy bounds - nor mental woes
Can reach the peaceful sleeper here
Where angels watch his soft repose.

The remains were deposited in Rose Hill Cemetery, Messrs. J.J. Gresham, J.M. Jones, L.N. Whittle, Vergil Powers, H.L. Jewett, H.J. Laman, Emory Winship, and C.T. Ward acting as pall bearers.

GABRIEL BALDWIN ROBERTS (1816 - 1886)

Of the Roberts line we have the following data: A letter from Sabina J. Towsey Laning of Cornwall-on-Hudson, N.Y., dated May 15, 1906, to G.R. Solomon gives this information taken from an old family Bible:

John Benedict Roberts, born in Danbury, Conn., June 3, 1782, died in Monroe, Ct., Oct. 23, 1850, married Phebe French, born in Monroe, Ct., Mar. 2, 1785, died in McLean, N.Y., April 14, 1857.

Two brothers of Grandfather Gabriel Baldwin Roberts, Sidney and Marcus, migrated to Utah from Connecticut, each was married twice, but were not Mormons. Sidney's first wife was Delillah, and Marcus' first wife was Sarah. Julius married Pollyanne Farnum in 1853, according to notes from Sabina Laning, which also give the name of Pollyanne Taylor as his first wife, who bore him four children from 1833 to 1849. The Macon Telegraph of Feb. 15, 1886, published an obituary of Gabriel B. Roberts, a copy of this being in our files.

JOSEPH GILL STILES (1779 - 1858)

Joseph Gill Stiles and his second wife, Sarah Watkins Davis Stiles, came from Virginia. A letter from Lillian R. Solomon (Mrs. W.G.S.) to Gabriel R. Solomon dated Nov. 15, 1934, gives the following: "My grandfather, Joseph Gill Stiles, came from Chesterfield County, Va., and the records (census) show the name of John Stiles (his father) in that same county. He lived in Jones County, Georgia, at Caney Creek plantation, about 20 miles from Macon, and died there. My grandmother who was Sarah Watkins Davis must have come from Virginia with him, and yet I am not sure about that as she was the second wife. Grandfather Stiles was born in 1779 and died Feb. 15, 1858, and is buried in front of his old home, and Grandmother also.... as names were copied from the tombstone for me by Sophie Myrick. His wife Sarah died Feb. 5, 1842. Her birthdate is shown as 1793. My mother, Mary Ann Stiles (Roberts) died in 1864 when I was six years old, and I have only a vague memory of her in my mind. She was forty-four and died of typhoid fever which in those days was almost always fatal. My father (Gabriel Baldwin Roberts) came south from Connecticut when he was twenty-one (in 1836)- Macon was just ten years old - and settled in Macon, why, I do not know except there were a number of other Connecticut Yankee young men who came about that time. Mr. George F. Barker (Mrs. Walter Hill's father), Mr. John L. Boardman, (Mr. Arthur Boardman's father), Mr. Albert Mix, (Mrs. Jack Ross Bowdre's father), a Mr. Bond (a great Presbyterian they called "Deacon"), Mr. James Hall who worked for the Gas Company so long was his grandson. These were my father's friends all his life. His business was carriage making, and his shop was on Cherry Street where the Persons' was. The firm was Freeman & Roberts, and Mr. Azel Freeman (Cullen's grandfather) was the partner. I do not know how long the partnership lasted, but I think about 1860 he and Mr. Sam Dunlap went together in the same location, adding the grocery line to carriages, wagons, harness, etc. I know that was the firm when the war came on. Mr. Dunlap went and my father stayed at home; he was not physically qualified, and would be called a pacifist now, as he was utterly opposed to war and to secession. I heard him say he was required to send a "substitute" in his place."

More notes from Lillian R. Solomon to her son Gabriel give this information: "The two-room house (given my father and mother) was out from town on the Forsyth road and on the edge of the railroad cut. This was 1840, I think, and not till 1860 was the big house built. Grandfather Stiles did give it to my mother and at the same time two slaves, old Aunt Easter who was cook in my childhood days, and Elijah, who was young then and was with us till after Buff was born. I wish I could write a book about him. In my father's last illness he waited on him as faithfully as anybody could have done, lifted him as tenderly as a trained nurse, and loved him devotedly... As far as I know, Grandfather Stiles was just a gentleman farmer - never heard of his (being in) business. Grandfather (my father) Roberts never met Grandmother (my step-mother) his second wife, Elizabeth Chare, till after he came to Macon. She had a friend in Griffin, Ga., whom she visited and the wedding ceremony was held there in May, 1865, if my memory is correct. I find no record of her birth, as she did not want anybody to know her age, so there was no celebrating birthdays for her. It may be on the monument in Rose Hill. She died in 1894, I think. My grandmother Sarah Watkins Davis (Stiles) died before I was born, and I know nothing of her except I got the Sarah in my name from her. So far as I know, I never went to Caney Creek Planation, (Cousin Annie Martin told me the name), for after Grandfather Stiles' death and my father was left as executor of the estate, the others got into a controversy with him and there was quite a contention over the division. I have somewhere the papers about it...I know he came out winner, but was called every name in the category before it was over." (Written Dec. 10, 1934)

Joseph Gill Stiles came to Georgia from Petersburg, Va., according to another record we have, which also mentions that his father, John Stiles, fought in the Revolution with Virginia troops. Joseph Gill Stiles' first wife was Elizabeth Barber of Twiggs Co., Ga., and he had by her three children, Sallie, Nancy and Agnes Stiles. Elizabeth died in 1805 at the age of thirty-five, and is buried at Caney Head Plantation. Her daughter Agnes married Jack Martin, and had by him eleven children. By his second wife, Sarah, he had seven children, of whom Mary Ann was the third, and married Gabriel Baldwin Roberts.

Of the seven children of Peter and Maria Louise Malone Solomon only two were married and produced families - Mary Louise who married Alonzo Ripley, and William Griffin, who married Sarah Lillian Roberts on January 14, 1880, at St. Paul's Church, Macon. She was the daughter of Gabriel Baldwin Roberts and Mary Ann Stiles Roberts. She was born July 16, 1858, at Macon, and graduated at Wesleyan Female College in June, 1879.

WILLIAM GRIFFIN SOLOMON (1856 - 1927)

William Griffin Solomon was born in the old Vineville Ave. mansion in Macon, Sept. 14, 1856. His first work was as a traveling salesman for Jaques & Johnson, wholesale grocers, later the firm of Jaques & Tinsley. At the time of his marriage he was employed as a teller in the Exchange Bank, of which he later became a Director. He was chairman of the committee who built the Fourth National Bank building. For many years he maintained his own office on the basement floor of the Exchange Bank building. He was a member of the firm of Ripley & Solomon, brokers, who dealt in provisions and grain, and of the firm of Solomon & McRae, provision brokers. He was also a banker with W. G. Solomon & Co., stock and bond brokers.

Besides his business activities, he was identified with church, charity and educational work, being for a long time on the free school board and on the Bibb County Board of Education. He gave help to many deserving students by making it possible for them to obtain college educations through scholarships. During his activities on the free school board he was instrumental in completing the Gresham High School and the Whittle School. He served forty-nine years as steward of the Mulberry Street Methodist Church, succeeding his father Peter, who served thirty-five years, making a continual service in this church of eighty-four years. He had been superintendent of the Sunday School and conducted the W. G. Solomon Bible class for men, whose members later presented a memorial tablet to his memory to the Church on May 6, 1928.

William Griffin Solomon died June 29, 1927, following a stroke of apoplexy, living ten days after it. He died at the Old Nest and was buried in Riverside Cemetery. The Macon Telegraph of June 30, 1927, carried an extensive article about Mr. Solomon's life and career, also a fine editorial, and Atlanta papers as well as others also printed accounts of his life and death. Mrs. Lillian Roberts Solomon resided for the later years of her life and during her last illness at the home of her daughter, Frances Solomon Baskin, and died June 6th, 1941. She is buried in the Solomon lot in Riverside Cemetery next to Mr. Solomon. A World War I military stone marker issued by the United States Government for veterans has been placed on this lot for Gabriel Roberts Solomon, who served from the spring of 1917 until February 20, 1920, as an engineer officer. He was commissioned as a Major, Engineers Corps, later transferred to the Construction Division of the Quartermaster Corps, U.S.A., and honorably discharged as a full Colonel on the Staff of Brig. Gen. Richard C. Marshall, Jr. Maitland Solomon served in World War I, was commissioned a Lieutenant and fought in France, in the 113th Field Artillery, 30th Division. Our files contain a copy of a long letter to his mother from somewhere in France, dated June 29, 1918, in which he mentioned having met "Capt. Roosevelt", who was probably Theodore Roosevelt Jr., son of President Theodore (Teddy) Roosevelt.

Note: An old portrait of Grandfather Joseph Gill Stiles was found in an attic of the Old Nest by Gabriel R. Solomon on a visit to Macon in the thirties, and restored by him, and this portrait went to someone in the Georgia family, either Roberts or Clay, I think. At the same time we found a badly torn and soiled portrait reputed to be of Gabriel Baldwin Roberts made when he was a young man in Macon, which we also had restored as well as possible, and it is now in possession of Gabrielle Roberts Solomon Ewing in her home in Louisville, Ky. Two oval-framed portraits of Gabriel Baldwin Roberts and his (second) wife Elizabeth Chase, are in possession of Dana Solomon Munro
